Dear Parent/Carer,

It has been announced this afternoon that students in classrooms in England will no longer be expected (unless exempt) to wear face-coverings in lessons. This change comes into operation immediately and hence from today (Thursday 20th January) their wearing in classrooms is no longer expected, although students may continue to wear a face-covering in lessons if they wish to do so.

Wearing of face-coverings in corridors and communal areas inside the school building by students and staff is though still expected in secondary schools. As soon as I become aware of how long this expectation may be in place for then I will inform parents accordingly.

Best wishes,

Martin Hill
